Getting started on your beekeeping journey...

Has it ever seemed like the more you learn, the less you actually know? It will... What's important on your beekeeping journey is that you listen, read, and observe as much information about this hobby as you can. Classes are offered throughout the spring, summer, and early fall, and most consist of small group instruction, averaging 10 to 15 students per class. We also offer private instruction as time permits. Hands-on instruction is offered and most activities take place outdoors, weather-permitting.

Day-Long Tours

These tours are hands-on and run from

This is an activity the entire family can enjoy.

Observing the bees will bring you a better understanding about communication in the hive, and how important it is that they, and we, all work together. After visiting the bees, you'll have such admiration for these tiny creatures.
